Centennial Company Partners to Help Cancer Patients with House Cleaning Simply Spotless of Colorado joins non-profit Cleaning for a Reason (C4R) to provide free house cleaning services to women undergoing cancer treatments.

January 14, 2009

CENTENNIAL, Colo. - Simply Spotless of Colorado, a professional residential cleaning company based in Centennial, Colo., has joined the Cleaning for a Reason (C4R) non-profit nationwide network of companies that offer free house cleaning services for women undergoing treatment for cancer. Simply Spotless of Colorado will offer free house cleanings each month for qualifying women and will contribute monthly financial pledges to C4R to help with base operations.

"As the owner of a local business, I believe in giving back to the local community," said Peter Stephenson, president of Simply Spotless of Colorado. "I can't think of a better way to contribute than to give women undergoing the stress and illness of cancer treatments a break from everyday household duties so they can focus on their health and their families."

The C4R foundation includes a network of residential cleaning businesses that donate time and money. The foundation currently has more than 350 partners across the United States and Canada. The only criterion for a woman to be accepted into the program is verification of treatment for cancer.

Simply Spotless of Colorado has committed to provide four free house cleaning visits to each local woman in the program as long as the woman is undergoing treatment for cancer.
